Tuesday 19 February 2013 Thursday 21	Telephone conversation between MPI and a NZ official in China, includes discussion of which version of the meat export certificates for China can be used from 1 March 2013. Discussion not documented. One party understood that AQSIQ had not approved a change to meat certificates and therefore the certificates currently in use, under NZFSA name, must continue to be used from 1 March 2013. The other party understood that the meat certificates provided to AQSIQ on 6 February, showing the MPI name rather than NZFSA name, could be used as a transitional certificate from 1 March while MPI endeavoured to make the additional changes. However, as the parties to the telephone conversation did not have the same understanding, we believe that no arrangements were made to contact AQSIQ about the potential use of the meat certificate versions (provided to AQSIQ on 6 February) as transitional certificates from 1 March. We also understand no arrangements were made to ensure that the existing NZFSA certificates continued to be used. CHANGE OF NAME FOR THE NEW ZEALAND MINISTRY OF AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY

Communication from New Zealand

- 1. The New Zealand Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry (MAF) is changing its name to reflect the new functions of the organization following its merger with the New Zealand Food Safety Authority and the Ministry of Fisheries last year.
- 2. The new ministry will be called the Ministry for Primary Industries. Its areas of responsibility will encompass all government work across the agricultural, horticultural, fisheries and aquaculture, forestry and food sectors, including imports and exports. The new ministry will continue to have primary responsibility for food safety and biosecurity.
- 3. The new name will come into effect on 30 April 2012. The new logo of the Ministry for Primary Industries will simply be the New Zealand Government Coat of Arms. This will be phased in over time. Brands, official seals and logos, etc. used on official certificates will be updated at a later stage with notification, through New Zealand's overseas Posts, to counterpart authorities well in advance. (The name of the competent authority will also change to the Ministry for Primary Industries.) The change process is expected to run through to mid-2013.
- 4. Overseas authorities will continue to deal with the same (MAF) staff in the new ministry (MPI) that they are currently dealing with now. Likewise the legislation currently administered by MAF will continue in the new ministry (MPI).

Summary

We provide detail on new MPI seals and certification, following the amalgamation of MAF, NZFSA, Biosecurity and MFish, and request that posts inform competent authorities in their countries of accreditation of changes to take place from 1 March 2013.

TND's Formal Message of 6 March 2012 refers.

- 2. The renaming and amalgamation of the former Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry, Ministry of Fisheries, Biosecurity New Zealand and New Zealand Food Safety Authority to the "Ministry for Primary Industries" means that nomenclature changes are required for all official assurances (on export documentation, e.g. data boxes for specific consignment details, health attestations, and signature provisions etc.) and associated security devices (e.g. security paper, official seals, official devices and stamps) for New Zealand agriculture exports. New templates and security devices will be used on export documentation from 1 March 2013.
- 3. The change to official assurances and associated security devices is a straightforward process,

 The letter(s) attached (to be distributed as per instructions in the "Action" section of this message) give more detail on the process. We ask that posts convey the letter to Competent Authorities through whatever mechanism (TPN, covering letter etc.) you judge to be most appropriate. You may also wish to distribute the letter more widely to other agencies (e.g., if relevant, Foreign Affairs, Trade, Commerce and Customs Ministries etc.) with the objective of ensuring that products shipped using new certificates do not face delay at borders from March next year.
- 4. Definition of Competent Authority: MPI is the New Zealand competent authority, recognised by the New Zealand Government as responsible and competent for developing sanitary and phyto-sanitary measures and administering/supervising their implementation. SPS measures, as defined under the WTO SPS Agreement, are measures designed to protect human (food safety), animal or plant life or health. In practice, the competent authority is usually the Agriculture Ministry, but in many cases could also be a Food and Drug agency, Health Ministry, Quarantine authority etc.
- 5. Please note that MPI will not be distributing sample copies of new certificates individually tailored to each trading partner. This would be an overly resource-intensive approach. The attached certificates are therefore generalised, but indicative of the major changes that will be taking place from 1 March 2013. If faced with a request for individually-tailored certificates for a specific country, posts should in the first instance note that the samples provided canvass all the major changes, and that the content of the assurances themselves will not change.
- 6. In some cases, particularly where any of the former agencies (MAF, NZFSA etc.) are named in receiving countries' legislation, the process is potentially more complicated. MPI evaluates that some changes to domestic legislation may be needed in some countries. Moreover, where import certification requirements are more stringent/detailed, new certificates will cover this (as before).

 fall into either of these categories, and MPI has therefore crafted individual letters for each destination country.
- 7. MPI advises that a website setting out these changes will be established before 1 March 2013, to be used for information in case of any confusion. In that instance, exporters will be asked to share this with their importers and to attempt to resolve border issues themselves; posts and MPI will be called on only if that approach fails.
- -8. For GVA: In due course MPI is considering a broader notification to the WTO, especially to capture those countries to which New Zealand does not have formal accreditation. We will be in touch separately with you on this.

To the Competent Authority/ies

Nomenclature changes to New Zealand Export Certificates and Official Seals and Devices

On 30 April 2012 the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry (MAF) changed its name to the Ministry for Primary Industries (MPI). This was to reflect the new functions of the Ministry following the New Zealand Government's decision to merge MAF with the New Zealand Food Safety Authority (NZFSA) and the Ministry of Fisheries (Mfish). These functions cover the horticulture, agriculture, aquaculture, fisheries, forestry and food sectors, and include protecting New Zealand primary industries from biological risk.

MPI is the New Zealand competent authority for all sanitary and phytosanitary matters, including those relating to food safety, animal and plant life and health. Given its broad functions and areas of accountability, MPI is the gateway to government for all of New Zealand's primary industries.

A communication from the New Zealand Government in March 2012 advised of the name change and noted that nomenclature changes would be required in the future for all official assurances (export certification) and associated security devices (e.g. security paper, official seals, official devices and stamps) to reflect the new name of the New Zealand competent authority. Changes to our export certificates and associated security devices will take effect from 1 March 2013. This letter provides an overview of the changes that will be made to New Zealand's export certificates.

Attached to this letter are four generic samples of MPI export certificates for dairy products, meat products, plant products, and live animals/germplasm, which are intended to demonstrate the changes to our export certificates. These are only generic certificate examples and are not replicates of the certificates that will be used for exports to your country. Also attached as appendix one is a scanned copy of the two versions of official stamps, one of which will appear on MPI export certificates.

Legislative Changes Required

If legislative changes are needed in your country to reflect the change of the name of the New Zealand competent authority on export certificates and associated security devices, please ensure any necessary legislative changes are completed prior to the 1 March 2013 implementation date outlined in this letter.

You can contact MPI via the New Zealand High Commission/Embassy accredited to your country or alternatively, by emailing market.access@mpi.govt.nz should you have any questions.

Transitional Period

Please note that there will be a transition period during which border officials may receive both the existing and new export certificate templates. This is due to those export certificates issued prior to 1 March 2013 being in

Standards Branch

Wellington 6140, New Zealand Telephone: +64-4-894-0100, Facsimile: +64-4-894 0720

www.mpi.govt.nz

the current format, and those certificates issued from 1 March 2013 being in the new format, and reflects the shipping times from New Zealand to other countries.

In addition, this transition period also affects New Zealand exports which may be presented to border officials with the current official seals and official devices after 1 March 2013. This is unavoidable as product sealed prior to 1 March 2013 with current carton seals and then chilled or frozen, cannot be replaced with new seals, as these will not permanently adhere to chilled or frozen product cartons.

Changes to Export Certificates

References on all New Zealand export certificates to the Ministry of Agriculture and Forest (MAF), the New Zealand Food Safety Authority (NZFSA), and the Ministry of Fisheries (MFish) will be removed and replaced with the words 'New Zealand Ministry for Primary Industries', 'Ministry for Primary Industries' or 'MPI'. This includes references made in relation to attestations/declarations, titles/headers of certificates, and references to the competent authority.

The export certificates affected include all certificates for animal products (human, animal and inedible product), food and beverages, live animals and germplasm, and plant and plant products, and the IUU fish catch certificates.

Please note that no changes will be made to the actual assurances provided by the New Zealand Government in the export certificates.

The security paper for sanitary export certificates for animal products (meat, dairy, seafood, non-edible etc), and IUU fish catch certificates will remain unchanged, and will continue to include a watermark referring to "New Zealand SPS Certificate". All existing security features will also remain unchanged. From 1 March 2013, live animals/germplasm export certificates will also utilise the same security paper as animal products.

Phytosanitary export certificates for plants and plant products, grade certificates and OECD varietal certificates for seed will utilise new security paper that includes screen rulings to show multiple prints of 'COPY' across the certificate when the original version is scanned. The background of the paper will read 'New Zealand Government' and references to MAF and NZFSA will be replaced with 'New Zealand Ministry for Primary Industries'.

Changes to Security Devices

References to MAF, NZFSA or MFish and a series of numbers (e.g. NZFSA0044444) on official seals will be replaced with 'MPI' followed by the same series of numbers (e.g. MPI0044444). Official seals include container bolt seals, Tyden seals, Mega Lock seals applied to shipping containers, and official carton seals.

References to MAF, NZFSA or MFish on official devices (including brands) will also be replaced with 'New Zealand Ministry for Primary Industries', 'Ministry for Primary Industries' or 'MPI', as appropriate, from 1 March 2013.

Letterhead Certificates (Registration Certificates/Free Sale Certificates/Organic Certificates/Grade Certificates/Wine Certificates)

Where a letterhead assurance is required by an importing country (e.g. for registration of a product) any reference to 'MAF', 'NZFSA' or 'MFish' will be removed and replaced with 'New Zealand Ministry for Primary Industries', 'Ministry for Primary Industries' or 'MPI', as appropriate from 1 March 2013.

Hem Ol(b)

Signatory Seals (Official Stamps)

Two types of official stamps will be used when signing and stamping export certificates or letterhead certificates (refer to appendix one) from 1 March 2013. A generic stamp will be utilised for phytosanitary certificates, grade certificates and OECD varietal certificates. The unique identifier stamp will include the words 'official seal' and will be individually numbered and allocated to MPI official certifiers/authorised persons. The s/s acts (me atch certifica ation and free sa)

after please contact MPI via the ay emailing market.access@mpi.gc

$9(2)(9)

$9(2)(9) unique identifier stamp will be utilised for all export certificates for animal products (meat, dairy, seafood, inedible etc), live animals/germplasm, wine, organics, quota and IUU fish catch certificates. Depending on the product-type in question, either type of stamp may be utilised on registration and free sale certificates.

Should you have any guestions on the matters raised in this letter please contact MPI via the New Zealand High Commission/Embassy accredited in your country or by emailing market.access@mpi.govt.nz by 14 December 2012.

Yours sincerely.

Hi: 5 9 (2)(9)

Sorry to do this to you. has come back and asked that we remove all third country optional $S^{\alpha}(2)$ (a) clauses from the PDF copies you sent me earlier that you updated using 'MPI'. These optionals don't sit with the protocol and we had been meaning to do this for some time.

Could you please remove the following:

CN100.3 - please remove attestation f.

CN102.3 - please remove attestations g, h, and i.

CN105.3 – please remove attestation f.

– please remove attestation g. S G(A)

The CN200 and the 300s are all fine.

Could you please send me a set of PDFs again with these changes so I can forward to Obviously, these changes are just for these PDFs for now, not for current live certs.

,6(a)

As previously indicated MPI will be changing all certificates and seals from New Zealand Food Safety Authority to the new name Ministry for Primary Industries. Attached to this fax is a letter and examples of certificates and seals which will be in use by MPI from March 1. As stated we will provide you with 50 specimen copies of the dairy certificate. The documents will also be provided by email so you have an electronic version available.

Some of the specimen examples provided still have optional causes for product from third countries included. These are not used and I have asked for these to be removed. We will be providing you with revised electronic specimens and 50 paper specimens which only contain the agreed clauses.

Yours sincerely

Dear 4

Nomenclature changes to New Zealand Export Certificates and Official Seals and Devices

On 30 April 2012 the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry (MAF) changed its name to the Ministry for Primary Industries (MPI). This was to reflect the new functions of the Ministry following the New Zealand Government's decision to merge MAF with the New Zealand Food Safety Authority (NZFSA) and the Ministry of Fisheries (Mfish).

MPI is the New Zealand competent authority for all sanitary and phytosanitary matters, including those relating to food safety, animal and plant life and health. Given its broad functions and areas of accountability,

A communication from the New Zealand Government in March 2012 advised of the name change and noted that nomenclature changes would be required in the future for all official assurances (export certification) and associated security devices (e.g. security paper, official seals, official devices and stamps) to reflect the new name of the New Zealand competent authority. Changes to our export certificates and associated security devices will take effect from 1 March 2013. This letter provides an overview of the changes that will be made to New Zealand's export certificates.

$6(a)

Attached to this letter are the following copies of the new certificates for CN100, CN102, CN103, CN104, CN105 Fifty specimen copies will be forward once we have confirmation the revised certificates are approved. Also attached as appendix one is a scanned copy of the two versions of official stamps, one of which will appear on MPI export certificates.

Transitional Period

Please note that there will be a transition period during which border officials may receive both the existing and new export certificate templates. This is due to those export certificates issued prior to 1 March 2013 being in the current format, and those certificates issued from 1 March 2013 being in the new format, and reflects the shipping times from New Zealand to China.

In addition, this transition period also affects New Zealand exports which may be presented to border officials with the current official seals and official devices after 1 March 2013. This is unavoidable as product that is packed and sealed prior to 1 March 2013 with current carton seals and then chilled or frozen, cannot be replaced with new seals, as these will not permanently adhere to chilled or frozen product cartons.

Changes to the Certificates

References on all New Zealand export certificates to the New Zealand Food Safety Authority (NZFSA), have been removed and replaced with the words 'Ministry for Primary Industries'. This has resulted in a change to the title and the reference to the competent authority.

Please note that no changes have been made to the actual assurances provided by the New Zealand Government in the export certificates for meat and meat products.

The security paper for sanitary export certificates for animal products will remain unchanged, and will continue to include a watermark referring to "New Zealand SPS Certificate". All existing security features will also remain unchanged.

Changes to Security Devices

References to NZFSA and a series of numbers (e.g. NZFSA0044444) on official seals will be replaced with 'MPI' followed by the same series of numbers (e.g. MPI0044444). Official seals include container bolt seals, Tyden seals, Mega Lock seals applied to shipping containers, and official carton seals.

References to NZFSA on official devices (including brands) will also be replaced with 'New Zealand Ministry for Primary Industries', 'Ministry for Primary Industries' or 'MPI', as appropriate, from 1 March 2013.

Letterhead Certificates (Registration Certificates/Free Sale Certificates/Organic Certificates/Grade Certificates/Wine Certificates)

Where a letterhead assurance is required by an importing country (e.g. for registration of a product) any reference to 'MAF', 'NZFSA' or 'MFish' will be removed and replaced with 'New Zealand Ministry for Primary Industries', 'Ministry for Primary Industries' or 'MPI', as appropriate from 1 March 2013.

Signatory Seals (Official Stamps)

Two types of official stamps will be used when signing and stamping export certificates or letterhead certificates (refer to appendix one) from 1 March 2013. A generic stamp will be utilised for phytosanitary certificates, grade certificates and OECD varietal certificates. The unique identifier stamp will include the words 'official seal' and will be individually numbered and allocated to MPI official certifiers/authorised persons. The unique identifier stamp will be utilised for all export certificates for animal products (meat, dairy, seafood, inedible etc), live animals/germplasm, wine, organics, quota and IUU fish catch certificates. Depending on the product-type in question, either type of stamp may be utilised on registration and free sale certificates.

Should you have any questions on the matters raised in this letter please myself or

I sent the PDF's of the meat cert to Div 1

they have come back wanting to make some changes. They had signalled to us last year they wanted to do this.

The problem is that by the time we sort that out there will be no time to manage the formal approval process and get the cert up and running at their end by March 1.

I an assuming we are locked in legally to a change on march 1 or is the a possibility to delay the actual cert change for a few weeks?

ant to be then NB I have explained the optional clauses are not meant to be there. It might be worth considering removing these clauses if they are not needed.

To save anything being lost in translation, could you please give me the name and phone number of the person I need to speak to in your company to get a full run down of what has happened, and to get the following information:

Copies of certificates and certificate numbers

I will ring as soon as you give me contact details. Once I have this information I can go back to our Embassy and get hopefully get to the bottom of the problem and get things moving. Without this information it will be difficult to move fast. Just to let you know also that still on leave and his staff member is out of the office today (this week being largely a holiday week in China). If I can get all the information I need today, I can ensure that it is waiting for the Embassy the moment they open for business on Monday (although I of course see if any other staff there are available to rush this through today).

says, while we (MPI/Embassy) may have used the word "interim" certificate to differentiate As it from the meat certs under discussion for exports to China, it was always one set of the envisaged name change from NZFSA to MPI taking place on all certificates; p.m.

But it would not tell us when the shipment was actually arriving, whether the certificate had been presented, or indeed, whether the shipments had already been cleared by CIQs.

56 a

The simple answer is that any New Zealand certificate for meat products issued after 1 March will have the MPI name on the top, with attestations exactly as had been in use in the NZFSA certificates in use up to 28 February 2013.

-S6(a)

Specimen certificates are being printed on security paper, as requested. Security features continue to be incorporated.

MPI provided generic examples of new MPI official seals (stamps): change on 1 March.

Because there were still products on the way to China, our documentation showed the stamps from both organisations (NZFSA and MPI), the former valid to 28 February, the latter from 1 March.

Hope that helps.

Further update

MPI is providing daily updates to the Meat Industry Association to circulate to its membership, and will also be formally advising on developments by 9(2)(1) as the situation becomes clearer, and systems (and China) are ready to roll out the new certification.

China certification problem

Hi

F59(2)(g)

We have an issue with MPI meat certs not being accepted by Chinese authorities – out of the MPI name change process (59(2))

The industry have contacted me, Wayne, Ministers both we and the Meat Industry Association (MIA) are concerned about media interest if this issue isn't resolved in the next few days.

Our man in China is working hard on this and hopes to have a readout in the next 2-3 days but if things don't progress we will need the able services of one of your feam to work with team and MIA on back pocket messages if needed.

Can you get someone to link to , who can start the discussion on the issue.

Historically we have linked with MIA on Comms messaging, who would also co-ordinate with the meat companies the same messages if there is significant media interest.

Thanks/Cheers Carol

As discussed; we urgently require another report to check on all the certificates listed in previous (attached report).

This new report needs to check every certificate listed in old report and

- 1) confirm the status of that certificate,
- 2) the date of that status change,
- 3) if the status is Replaced we need the Replacement Cert number (+ a) a Replacement cert status and b) the date of the status change).

Confusion remains over China hold on NZ meat

While Prime Minister John Key says the block will soon end, Federated Farmers are concerned at its impact, report Tim Cronshaw, Hamish Rutherford and Kate Chapman.

Chinese officials are yet to explain exactly why they are blocking meat from entering the country.

At a chaotic press conference in Parliament yesterday, Primary Industries Minister Nathan Guy insisted New Zealand's relationship with China officials was "wonderful".

However, he was unable to explain the "documentation issues" preventing beef and sheep meat entering the country.

On Friday it emerged that New Zealand meat products had been held up in Chinese ports, possibly for weeks.

The Government has refused to give any timing on a fix and warned speculation about the reasons behind it could be damaging.

Andrew Coleman, deputy director general for the Ministry of Primary Industries (MPI), said the ministry was working with Chinese officials, but could not establish what the issue was.

"We're not being told at this stage what the specific issue is.

"They've indicated they've got a technical issue with the documentation, that's what we're there with them yesterday, right now, talking through what is their exact concern, because we will remedy that concern," Coleman said.

The issue has been blamed on the merger of several government departments into MPI, however export certificates changed on March 1, and "product flowed freely after that point" Guy told reporters.

"But just in the last couple of weeks there has tended to be some delay of some product."

It was "too hard" to estimate how much meat was being stuck at port, with some chilled product being allowed through the borders.

No other countries had raised issues with New Zealand's documentation. Guy ducked questions about whether Chinese officials were being obstructive or acting in good faith.

"The relationship is extremely strong with China," Guy said, noting the number of meetings between top politicians in both countries.

"We will work through these documentation issues with Chinese officials to get this issue sorted."

After 11 minutes of questions Guy led Coleman away from reporters, refusing to take further questions.

Federated Farmers' president Bruce

Wills believed the block should be resolved within days.

He said he was informed about the issue on Friday afternoon, the day the story broke, and told it should be resolved in short order.

"This won't be something farmers are too pleased about, if there was a longer hiccup in this important Chinese trade than we've been advised, but at this stage my advice was this would be sorted within a matter of days."

Senior sources within the meat industry have said they believe the issue is one of protecting the local pork and poultry industries, noting that other animal products have been allowed to enter the country throughout the issue.

"There is a heap of speculation around the place but I don't know because I've had no confirmation or verification of any of the other speculation," Wills said. Farmers struggling with the after-

Farmers struggling with the aftereffects of drought and low prices are calling on the Government to act quickly to resolve the problem.

They were dismayed to learn of the paperwork wrangle as China has emerged as a major customer, becoming the largest buyer of New Zealand's sheepmeat by volume and value in the first quarter of the year.

Wills said the unexpected meat block could not have landed at a worse time for farmers struggling to cope with farming after drought and falling lamb prices.

"It is a concern particularly because this is a critical market for New Zealand and there has been a fair bit of excitement and anticipation at how quickly our exports have been going to China. To get a hiccup like this is a concern."

Wills said most of the meat stored in refrigerated containers at the border appeared to be frozen and could keep for months if necessary, but this would eventually generate a buildup of export stock if not solved quickly.

Farmers were wondering where the meat would go if it remained blocked and the wisdom of relying on a major market. They recognised China was a relatively new market and would not have the paperwork systems of European markets, he said.

China's economic and commercial consul Zhang Fan said yesterday the delay was likely due to a "small mistake" on the New Zealand side, and it was wrong to say meat exports to China had been blocked.

"I think probably there's just a miscommunication," Zhang said. "I think probably they just haven't

"I think probably they just haven't passed on the information as quickly as possible to the relevant Chinese authorities."

Zhang said he was "quite confident" the issue could be resolved quickly but he could not say how long that would be, saying: "They have to go through a kind of procedure, just the normal kind of bureaucratic process."

Zhang had not been able to get an update from officials in Beijing because of time differences, but pointed to the free trade agreement and New Zealand's rising exports to China and said there was a "very good" framework for discussing issues.

Earlier yesterday Prime Minister John Key said China fast-tracking sign offs on Kiwi meat plants was behind the block.

Some industry sources speculated it could be protectionism by Chinese authorities who were using the certification change as a pretext to protect local pork and poultry industries, despite New Zealand having a free trade agreement with China.

But the problem was more of an indication of how close New Zealand's relationship with China was, Key said.

He said in his recent trip to China, he put pressure on the country to authorise a few of New Zealand's production plants because of the high quality.

"The Chinese accommodated us, but the paperwork hadn't caught up," Key said..

"There's nothing sinister in it. Part of the problem is they fast-tracked the plants, the meat is not being spoiled."

He said it was not a long-term problem, and the Chinese authorities were working their way through it. Fairfax NZ

"We will work through these documentation issues with Chinese officials to get this issue sorted."

Hi Andrew,

As discussed

My take is:

- 1. There was a name change to MPI, this prompted the need for new certificates.
- 2. AQSIQ did not approve the new certificates, and requested some amendments

56(a)

3.

6(a) 4.

- 5. MPI did not provide those original copies (Why?)
- 6. MPI continued using certificates with MPI on the certificates despite no official approval.

6(a) 7.

8. MPI provided the original copies eventually (When?)

6(⁶⁾ 9.

This is how I see the story played out, and what I need is a either confirmation that this is the case, or that it is not. If it is not, I need MPI to tell me exactly what part of the story is incorrect. It may be true that there are other dimensions to this story, but ultimately the above looks to be the nucleus of the problem.

You'll see there are questions on points 5 and 8. Point 8 is probably the most pertinent.

6 (a)

Could you please get back to me on the this as soon as you can?

Thanks,

Nick

This will impact the version number of your new CN templates. For example the current CN template version is CN100.4, your new CN template is CN100.5. In order to maintain a sequential version history we would take a copy of CN100.4 and call it CN100.5 forcing us to rename your new template to something else. Otherwise we will end up with CN100.4 (active), (new with NZFSA references) then your CN100.5 (your new changes) 5 6/11 We are creating these templates for Debbie in the next few minutes so if you could get back to us in the next few minutes that would be great. I have been told that we are to implement new CN (100 series) templates to facilitate replacement certs for affected consignments issued since 1 March onwards.

So, to make it clear what is required here is a brief 'reconciliation' of our current CN100 series situation:

- The CN 100 series templates are currently in production:

CN100.4 CN102.4 CN103.4 CN104.5 CN105.4 -66(A)

You requested all above templates to be amended in order to revert to old ministry name and old competent authority name. The new draft versions, ready to be implemented, are as follows.

CN100.5 CN102.5 CN103.5 56(a) =

CN105.5

Please note that we don't have the ability to keep the existing version number when making the change to an already approved/implemented template. The same will happened once these "temporary" templates are replaced with a final agreed template.

I will hold on with implementation till I receive your confirmation to go ahead with new versions. regards

Recap of Minister's instruction and request for further plan

Importance:

High

Hi Andrew and Wayne,

The Minister has asked me to quickly recap the events of the last day or so and to request that we formalise the work plan we have discussed for the next couple of days.

If I could just recap, having finally gotten to the bottom of exactly what the issue is today (i.e. that MPI have been issuing certificates that were not fully authorised by AQSIQ), a clear pathway forward has emerged. As the Minister discussed with you yesterday he expects that Wayne will initiate a detailed look into the whys and hows of this situation.

However, he also wants to make clear that your (and your staff's) number one priority remains that the meat on the wharves gets cleared and delivered to consumers.

So here is what I understand the plan to be (as outlined by the Minister this morning):

Plan A of providing the right information to AQSIQ and answering their questions is to continue. However it is not good enough that we continue to simply do this. We need to implement plan B at the same time. As discussed with you plan B is to reissue certificates for the delayed consignments on the old but still authorised letterhead. He's aware that this will be very work intensive and could come with additional costs, but it is simply not good enough tocontinue to allow that meat to stay on those wharves. You will prioritise the consignments that have been there the longest and you and your staff will not stop working until those certificates are redone, re-signed, and re-delivered to AQSIQ. It is simply not an option for this week to go by without any movement of the consignments.

Could I please have as soon as is practicable (i.e. by tomorrow morning) a detailed plan and timeline of what is going to be delivered over the next 24 hours. This work plan and timeline will be updated on an on-going basis.

Now that the details of why this incident has occurred are becoming clearer

'. He is quite clear that this new information is to be passed on firstly to the meat industry and then to the public. He will continue to speak publicly on the latest developments, as this issue does delve into quite technical details MPI must immediately begin preparing to provide answers to both the industry and the public.

I'm happy to discuss any of the above, as is the Minister,

This will be progressed as follows.

- 1. MPI to identify all certificates that are currently marked in the system as 'acknowledged.
- 2. MPI to amend the template to show NZFSA as the competent authority. This template will be version CN100.5.
- 3. NZ Embassy to assist in identifying a clutch of 'priority consignments' chilled meat and frozen meat that has been detained the longest.

Ministry for Primary Industries working to clear meat to China

23 May 2013

New export certificates are being issued to release containers of meat products held up at the Chinese border, the Ministry for Primary Industries said today.

Shipments of meat into China were delayed after MPI issued export certification in a format which had not been approved by Chinese authorities at AQSIQ.

"In close cooperation with AQSIQ, we have now developed a process to fix the problem and are working around the clock to implement it. In the first instance this will involve issuing the correct certification for products that have been held up or are currently on the water. New certificates will start flowing to China today," says MPI's acting director-general Andrew Coleman.

"While the issue here is a technical one, we can fully understand the decision by Chinese authorities to delay the consignments of New Zealand meat."

"Making sure the details are right around export certification is part of MPI's core responsibility. We issue some 7000 meat and seafood export certificates a month, with associated transfer documents numbering about 40,000. It's critically important that New Zealand's exporters and trading partners can be confident that the certification we provide is correct," Mr Coleman said.

"When this issue has been sorted out we will be taking a very hard look at our processes to find out how this happened and make sure it never happens again.

"We will examine why the scale and seriousness of this issue wasn't made clear to Ministers sooner, and the timeliness of our updates. We have apologised to Ministers, and we will be apologising to meat exporters, and the Chinese authorities about the confusion and frustration this issue has caused."

Media Statement

Resolution of New Zealand meat exports to China

A resolution has been agreed which should see authorities clearing New Zealand meat exports to China from next week, Primary Industries Minister Nathan Guy has announced.

"Chinese authorities have agreed they will begin releasing consignments under the name of the New Zealand Food Safety Authority.

"Officials are working around the clock to reissue certificates for all the meat consignments that are held up at ports or on the water.

"This is positive news for farmers and exporters after what has been a frustrating time.

"The Ministry for Primary Industries have now released information on how and why this delay occurred. It provided certification in a format which AQSIQ had not yet approved, and in doing so caused confusion for Chinese inspectors.

"I am very disappointed in the Ministry for Primary Industries for its mistakes in certification which have caused this delay.

Item 29 (b)

"Accurately certifying exports of New Zealand agricultural goods is a core function for the Ministry and this mistake should never have occurred. Officials have a responsibility to meat exporters and to all New Zealanders to get the basic details right.

"I am grateful to the Chinese authorities for their willingness to work constructively with New Zealand officials to find a way through this administrative error. I am also grateful to the New Zealand meat industry for their patience.

"At the moment our number one priority is ensuring the product gets off the wharf and onto the plates of Chinese consumers as quickly as possible.

"MPI officials have also let themselves down in two further ways: by not informing Ministers of the scale and seriousness of this issue early enough, and in being too slow to provide information on exactly why this problem occurred.

"The Director-General of MPI first informed Food Safety Minister Nikki Kaye and I of this issue on Tuesday 14 May. However, the size of this issue was not made clear until I began receiving calls from the meat industry on Friday 17 May.

"After making my own inquiries it became apparent the issue was bigger than what officials had been telling me so I called the officials in for an explanation on Saturday morning.

"I'm disappointed it has taken so long to get to the bottom of this problem and for the Ministry to come up with a proper explanation. This has been frustrating for myself, the public and meat exporters.

"Overall we have a strong system and a mistake like this is highly unusual. I have given the Director-General of MPI clear instructions to ensure this does not happen again," says Mr Guy.

/tem 29(b)

Meat to China Update

Thursday 23 May, 2013

Message from Andrew Coleman (who has Acting delegations for DG Wayne McNee while Wayne is overseas).

The following update has been emailed to all staff and discussed with the wider senior leadership team and Directors. Further information will be provided to all staff as necessary.

Těná koutou katoa,

Following on from the Kotahi story earlier in the week, progress is being made to clear meat shipments currently being delayed at the Chinese border.

The delay was caused after we issued export certification in a format which had not been approved by The delay was caused after we issued export certainted on a domain man man man one deen epipoved by Chinese authorities at AQSIQ. AQSIQ is the General Administration of Quality Supervision, Inspection and Quarantine in China. While the issue is a technical one, we can fully understand the decision by Chinese authorities to delay consignments of New Zealand meat.

With the input of AQSIQ, we've developed a process to fix the problem. MPI is working to provide Chinese authorities with the certification they need to clear the containers. New certificates will start Chinese authorities have been accommodating and are working to clear the shipments as soon as possible.

We issue thousands of export certificates a month, and they play a critical role in enabling trade. By and large we do an excellent job, but on this occasion an error in our processes was made, and it has had a significant impact on the meat industry, on our relationship with Ministers and on our public reputation, After we have fixed the issue, we'll be looking into our processes to find out how the mistake was made and what we can do to prevent it happening in future. The focus is on finding ways

Another issue to examine is how we can better communicate to Ministers sooner. We have apologised to Ministers and will apologise to meat exporters and Chinese authorities about the confusion and Inustration this has caused.

MPI have issued our own press release and the Ministers Office have also issued one. You are likely to continue to see coverage of this issue in the media over the coming days.

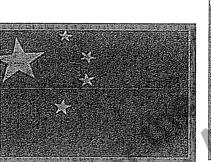

I want to once again thank the staff who have been working hard over several days to resolve this difficult situation. The professionalism and dedication on display have been very much appreciated.

Communications Plan - meat exports to China

Last update - Monday 27 May 2013 AM.

Background

At the end of April, MPI was alerted to an issue with certification of meat products at the Chinese border. It transpired that we had issued export certificates in a format that hadn't been approved by Chinese authorities at AQSIQ, their inspection and quarantine agency.

We are issuing replacement export certificates so that the containers of meat held up at the Chinese border can be released as quickly as possible. We are reliant on meat exporters requesting replacement certificates to complete this process. We are also working with Chinese authorities to resolve the certification issues.

Minister Guy has asked for a review of the processes that led to the certification issues and also the .o. .s plan .che respon timeliness of our briefings to him and Minister Kaye. This communications plan outlines recommended internal and external messaging and tactics to manage the response to his public statements.

Objectives

- Protect MPI's reputation with:
 - o Trading partners
 - Industry
 - o Public
- Show we take responsibility and are accountable
- Reassure MPI staff

KEY MESSAGES

Internal

- You will have seen the publicity about the meat delays at the Chinese border. Senior management are working closely with staff across MPI to resolve the situation quickly and restore confidence – with our trading partners, the Government and staff.
- As you will have seen, our priority is to fix the issues and to ensure we learn from them and they don't happen again.
- The situation arose after we issued export certificates in a format that hadn't been approved by Chinese authorities at AQSIQ, their inspection and quarantine agency.
- We have issued new export certificates so that the containers of meat held up at the Chinese border can be released.
- You will have seen Minister's Guy's comments in the media expressing his disappointment and concern at the issues that have occurred and the timeliness in which we briefed him and Minister Kaye.
- We have apologised to the Ministers and the meat exporters concerned and will apologise to Chinese authorities for what has happened.

Hen 32

- We have assured them all that we will be taking a long, hard look at our processes including the timeliness of our briefing and updates to the Ministers.
- It is never easy to see our organisation criticised publicly for our performance. But we all make mistakes and the important thing is to learn from them.
- We want to make it clear that we aren't going on any kind of witchhunt. We will be looking at processes, not individuals. We all make mistakes and they are an opportunity to learn and improve. By and large we get things right but unfortunately on this occasion we didn't.
- The Senior Leadership Team thanks the staff from right across the organisation who have stepped up to help address this issue, especially all of the volunteers who worked over the weekend (25, 26 May, 2013) in Christchurch, Wellington and Auckland and the regions, issuing replacement certificates.

External

- MPI senior management and staff are working to resolve the situation quickly and restore confidence with our trading partners, the meat industry and the Government.
- Our priority is to fix the issues and to ensure we learn from them and they don't happen again.
- The situation arose after we issued export certificates in a format that hadn't been approved by Chinese authorities at AQSIQ, their inspection and quarantine agency.
- We are issuing replacement export certificates so that the containers of meat held up at the Chinese border can be released.
- We have apologised to the Ministers, to the Chinese authorities and to the meat exporters concerned for what has happened.
- We have assured them all that we will be taking a long, hard look at our processes.
- We run a huge and complex assurance system, and by and large we get things right. But mistakes can and do happen. The important thing is for us to fix them fast and learn from them.

Overarching strategy

Policy/Standards will be producing a daily update to the Ministers. This will form the basis of updated messaging to key stakeholders and staff, including staff at the frontline (especially meat processing facilities and interacting with meat exporters).

Internal

Many staff will have seen the publicity and be concerned about the situation and the impact on them individually, and the organisation as a whole. We need to provide the facts, so they understand what is happening and why.

We need to provide them with some key messaging to use when talking to their contacts and to

Frontline staffMeat Exporters
Wider industry to be updated regularly (but not daily). MPI stakeholder managers to send updates.	As needed. Next one Wednesday 29 May
Work with Ministers offices to provide answers to media	As needed ensure consistency in messaging. And we need to provide reassurance - both about the internal review and about the organisation's reputation. That needs to come from the Director General and Senior Leadership Team, and cascade down through to directors and managers who need to be sharing this information and reassuring their staff directly and reminding them of all of the great work MPI does every day.

Hen 32

Frontline staff will need key messaging to be able to talk to their stakeholders - again about the facts and to provide reassurance.

External

We will continue to maintain a reactive approach with the media and a proactive approach with stakeholders, updating them with key information as it comes to hand. We will work with the Minister's office to ensure that all messages provided to media are consistent and accurate.

We will provide key messaging for staff at all levels to use when talking with stakeholders and contacts to ensure consistent messaging. We will update website and social media, as needed.

Appendix one:

Latest update (shared lines to be used by frontline staff as at end of play 26 May 2013. Note these have been sent to the Ministers' offices).

*Chinese authorities have received the first batch of 245 new replacement certificates and will be processing these first. The first priority is for chilled meat and frozen meat that has been at the wharf the longest.

*MPI officials have been working with meat exporters this weekend to ensure as many uncleared consignments as possible have had replacement certificates issued.

*All industry requests for replacements as at 3pm Sunday (at least 1,300) have been issued. We expect remaining certificates to be processed on Monday morning. All .Jn in Chin: ut Ne replacement certificates are being sent to the NZ Embassy in China and they will be delivered to the Chinese authorities on Monday.

Overall script for MPI frontline staff

You will have seen some media coverage about New Zealand meat getting held up on the Chinese border.

This came about because we issued export certificates in a format that hadn't been approved by Chinese authorities at AQSIQ, their inspection and quarantine agency.

Each month MPI processes some 7,000 export certificates for meat around the world, with associated transfer documents numbering about 40,000. There are also about 6,000 certificates issued for dairy and 5,000 for plants.

56 (A)

Right now the focus is on fixing the problem and we're doing a range of things to make that happen. Our senior management are working closely with staff across MPI to resolve the situation quickly and restore confidence - with our trading partners, the Government and staff.

The first tranche of correct export certificates have been sent to Chinese authorities and more were to follow today (Friday 24 May).

. We're working with exporters to replace certificates for the rest.

Around 280 certificates were identified as being of 'highest priority' and physical copies of these and 380 others have been sent with an MPI official to China.

-16(a)

Over the weekend Standards staff and other volunteers will be working hard to prepare the required replacement certificates.

When normal business has resumed, we'll be taking a look at our processes to see if there are any checks and balances we can put in place to make sure this doesn't happen again.

.≇ed j. . them fas. It is never easy to see our organisation criticised publicly for our performance. But we all make mistakes and the important thing is to fix them fast and learn from them.

Appendix two: Q&As

How did this happen?

The situation arose after we issued export certificates in a format that hadn't been approved by Chinese authorities at AQSIQ, their inspection and quarantine agency.

We have issued new export certificates so that the containers of meat held up at the Chinese border can be released.

We will be looking into our processes to see how this happened and whether we can institute checks and balances to prevent it from happening again.

Has the issue been sorted out?

We're focussing on getting product that is already there or on the water cleared. The first tranche of correct export certificates have been sent to Chinese authorities and more were to follow today (Friday 24 May). Ministry for Primary Industries officials have travelled to China with copies of these certificates. We're working with exporters to replace certificates for the rest.

2 ((a)

Hem 32

How does this impact on the access New Zealand can have to markets?

This was a technical, administrative mistake. While the impacts were significant, they were short term. We are working to fix things and it will not inhibit the access New Zealand has to markets going forward.

Will we pay compensation?

We are focused on fixing the problem right now. We will look at any downstream issues, such as compensation, once trade has resumed, and we have finished examining our processes.

Is anyone being held accountable?

We are not going to conduct any kind of witchhunt. We will be looking at processes, not individuals. We've made a mistake and we have owned that. Now we're focussed on fixing the problem then we'll be looking at our processes so we can prevent this from happening in future.

How long will it take to look into your processes?

Right now the focus is on fixing the problem. Once that's done we will look at what we can learn from the mistake and how we can prevent it from happening again.

Is this mistake a result of the merger spreading MPI too thin?

No. The ministry places a strong focus on market access. We have actually increased our resources in this area.

How is MPI/ DDG holding up after the Minister's reaction?

We made a mistake, and we've owned that. Now we're focused on fixing the problem then we'll be looking at our processes so we can prevent this from happening in future.

How many containers are delayed?

Hen 32

At this point, we don't know the exact number but we know it is significant. We are reliant on meat exporters telling us which of their consignments have been cleared and which haven't. Our focus now is on fixing the problem.

Which containers will be given first priority?

Chilled products and those that have been sitting on the wharf for the longest time.

How long will it take to clear all the containers?

MPI is working to provide Chinese authorities with the certification they need to clear the containers. The Chinese authorities have been accommodating and are working to clear the shipments as soon as possible. We don't know how long this will take.

Have you apologised to the Chinese authorities and the meat companies?

We are to send a letter of apology to the Chinese authorities and have apologised to the meat companies affected.

Will MPI pay compensation to affected meat companies?

We are focussed on fixing the problem right now. We will look at any downstream issues, such as compensation, once trade has resumed, and we have finished examining our processes.

Do you have an estimate of how much this will cost the meat industry?

Not at this stage. Our focus at the moment is fixing the problem.

Could this problem spread to other food products like fish, dairy and fruit?

AQSIQ has accepted certification for other products.

Why didn't you identify the cause of the problem sooner?

We will be examining the time-lines as part of our look into our processes. Our focus now is to fix the problem.
